THE LAST CHANCE.

Importers Rushing Their Entries—Lively Times at the Custom House.

A special dispatch to the Chronicle from New York, dated October 4th, says the most intense excitement prevailed in and about the Custom House all day. Whole troops of importers and brokers kept coming and going, and as 3 o'clock approached the numbers increased until the rotunda was filled with a solid mass of humanity, which jostled, pushed and yelled. All wished to get their entries in under the old law, and stood ready to make entries the moment their vessels were sighted at Fire Island.

By the decision of yesterday the Custom House was to have closed at 3 o'clock this afternoon, but the mass of importers and brokers in the Custom House was so great at 3 o'clock that Collector Erhardt announced that the time would be extended until 6 o'clock. Each moment after 3 o'clock the excitement became greater. Those in the rotunda appeared to be going crazy. They shouted, yelled and made futile efforts to move about. The clerks in the various divisions were swamped with business. Not for years has such a scene been enacted in the Custom House.

The Collector was in a quandary. His office was jammed full of importers, who waved rolls in their hands and shouted to him not to close. The pressure on the Collector became so great that finally he telegraphed Secretary Windom for advice. The Secretary soon replied for the Collector to use his discretion in the matter. Accordingly the Collector decided to keep the Custom House open until 12 o'clock tonight. When this decision was announced the importers cheered.

A YOUNG STATE'S PROGRESS.

Points from the Annual Report of Wyoming's Governor.

In his annual report Governor Warren estimates the population of Wyoming at something in excess of 63,000. These figures are furnished by the census supervisor, but the Governor is of the opinion that they do not represent the entire population owing to the difficulty in taking the census in such a limited time. The population of the city of Cheyenne is placed at 11,693, an increase of 8,237, and Laramie 6,395, an increase of 3,699.

The assessed valuation of taxable property in the State is $30,665,000, which, the report says, is not more than one-third the actual value. There is a cash balance in the treasury of $94,314, and the bonded indebtedness is $320,000.

The Governor says the number of cattle in the State is about the same as last year, but there are fewer large herds and many more small ones. The coal mines and oil wells, of which there are many, are being worked to advantage.

The Governor recommends that appropriations for surveys of public lands be increased; that Congress take measures to utilize the waste waters of mountain streams in providing storage reservoirs; that the State be donated its storage reservoirs; that the State be donated its arid lands, and authority be granted to tax persons occupying Indian reservations, and that the courts be authorized to try and punish white men for offenses against State laws when committed on Indian reservations.

DEATH CAME UNANNOUNCED.

Singular and Fatal Accident to a Railroad Passenger.

Passengers on a Burlington train that reached Chicago Saturday told of a strange and horrible accident that occurred shortly after the train left Galesburg. At that station a woman with a baby got on the train. She was coming to Chicago and from there intended to journey to Mexico to meet her husband. Her name was not learned. A few miles from Galesburg the train was running at a high rate of speed. The woman was seated about the center of a coach and had her face close to a window, when a freight train bound for Galesburg came along just on the opposite track. It was running at the rate of twelve miles an hour and the passenger train was thundering by at a forty mile clip.

The roar of the passing cars and the shaking of the roadbed loosened from its fastenings a door on the side of a freight car, and it fell outward and struck the window through which the unknown woman was peering. The corner of the thick door struck her full in the face with crushing force. Her features were smashed into a pulp, her skull fractured and the back part of her brains exposed. She died instantly. The train was stopped, and the body of the poor mother and the crying child were taken back to Galesburg.

A FRIEND OF THE WHITES.

Why a Pension Was Granted to an Indian Woman.

Just before the adjournment of Congress a bill was passed granting to Winemah Kiddle, a Modoc Indian woman, a pension of $25 a month during her lifetime. During the Modoc war of 1873 this woman warned the commission sent to negotiate peace that the Indians meant treachery, but General Canby and Dr. Thomas of the commission did not believe her story. The massacre took place and the two Commissioners mentioned were murdered. Colonel Mescham was wounded, scalped and left for dead when Winemah picked him up in her arms and carried him back to camp, where he soon recovered.

A WONDERFUL CAVE.

A Remarkable Cavern in the Yellow Hills—Some Interesting Discoveries.

Sunday morning, Manuel Azavedo, a Portuguese prospector, who had been in the employ of some San Francisco gentlemen for several months, prospecting in that section of the mountains southeast of Reno, known as the Yellow Hills, came into town with the information of the discovery of a wonderful cave about fourteen miles from this place, in that direction. Accompanied by two ranchers and a Journal reporter, Azavedo left Reno Sunday at 10 o'clock for the scene of the discovery. After some two hours of rapid driving they reached the eastern extremity of the Alexander ranch, when they left their wagons and picketed their horses in one of the pastures. Taking a coil of rope, some candles, a lantern, etc., the party made a tiresome scramble of some six miles through the dry, barren canyons of the Yellow Hills, when they came to a deep ravine within which was a growth of chamise brush, the first vegetation of any kind they had seen among these hills. The Portuguese led the way to the center of this plot of brush where a small milky stream issued forth for a dozen feet or more and then dried up, leaving a white incrustation of lime about. The spring appeared to bubble out of the ground at the foot of a small cliff, but where it issued was hidden by a veil of brush. Azavedo, with a grim smile, stepped forward and parted the brush, disclosing instead of the occult spring,

A TUNNEL-LIKE OPENING.

Into the rock, from which the lime waters trickled forth. The party, after holding a consultation and lighting the lantern and candles, got down on their hands and knees and crawled for some thirty feet or more through this awkward entrance, getting, in the meantime, wet and chilled from the damp sides, until they came to a chamber, which allowed them to stand erect.

This was not large, hardly more than thirty feet in width by forty in length, and of unequal height, varying from five to thirty feet.

The floor was quite uneven, with several large bowlders lying here and there and the whole having the appearance of having been at some time channeled out by water. A minute examination of this chamber was made, revealing at several points low passageways leading off into the mountain. A cry from the Portuguese drew all over to him. He was pointing with trembling finger to the representation of a human hand upon the wall. It had been made by dipping the palm in some kind of red paint and slapping it upon the side of the chamber. The impression was distinct and for the moment produced a gruesome feeling among the observers. It seemed pointing towards a passage-way leading from the room. After some discussion it was decided to enter this and endeavor to see what was beyond. The appearance of this dark tunnel was anything but inviting as it was scarcely two feet and a half in diameter, and would necessitate another disagreeable crawl.

However, there was no alternative, and getting down on their hands and knees the party forced their way along until they came to a place which was indeed

A FAT MAN'S MISERY.

The tunnel narrowed down to an aperture scarcely eighteen inches in height and two feet in width through which the party, only with the greatest difficulty, were able to force their persons through. After this, the passage began to grow larger until it became extensive enough to stand erect in. A walk of a quarter of a mile or more through this brought them of a sudden to the end of the tunnel when a scene of wonderful magnificence burst before their eyes. It was nothing less than that they had come out upon a natural balcony with

A YAST GROTTO OF ALABASTER.

Opening above, beneath and around them. Its sides and ceiling reflected the light from the candles and lantern as though interlarded with a million glistening stars. It was a chamber vast enough to be Nature's Westminster, and as beautiful as though created by a fairy's wand.

For a long time the party gazed awestruck before them, wrapped in silence by the very loveliness of the prospect. At length some idea began to shape itself of getting to the bottom and exploring the mysterious regions of the cavern. An examination was made of the wall and by fastening the rope to an overhanging rock and using its aid, it was found possible of descent. This was effected without serious difficulty and they found themselves on the floor of the grotto.

Here a brief rest was made as the exertions of the day had been a severe tax upon the strength of all. As the party was about to resume the exploration one of the number discovered another red impression of a hand near where they stood pointing along the left wall. Here was one more token that the cavern had sometime been known to human beings, although how many years or ages ago was not to be determined.

Following whither it pointed the party found themselves at length before a huge gateway, which, to their wonder, was roughly carved with hieroglyphic figures of men and animals. Upon the opposite faces of each of these blocks were the same impressions of hands pointing within.

Upon entering, a remarkable scene presented itself to their view. The chamber, or partition of the great cavern which they had entered, was, perhaps, fifty feet in diameter, and roofed above only by the great vaulting ceiling over all. But what attracted their attention and brought forth expressions of astonishment, was a pictured wall opposite.

The side of the cavern, naturally or artificially polished, was covered with the representations of birds, men, animals and geometric figures of hundreds of different kinds.

While these were calling forth exclamations of amazement the party was startled by an exclamation from Azavedo who had chanced to look to the other side. All eyes were instantly turned in that direction and a most appalling sight burst upon their vision. It was as though they were gazing on the faces of a vast theatre of spectators. Seated in rows, tier above tier, was a multitude of beings, silent, motionless, spectral. At first, so suddenly did the apparition present itself, they seemed alive, but a moment dispelled the illusion. There was a hideous, stony stare in the expressionless faces that could belong only to mummies. After the excitement had worn off to a certain extent, the party moved forward, treading carefully as though they were in a sepulchre. One of them touched a grim visaged body as he passed when it floated away in dust, leaving a peculiarly pungent odor in the air, several more disappeared in the same way from the slight draft of wind caused by passing near them, and leaving the atmosphere too offensive to be borne.

Leaving the chamber for the open cavern, it was decided, after a consultation, to go no farther that day but to return to the open air and make new and complete preparations for its thorough exploration. This was put into practice immediately, as the candles were nearly consumed and but little oil remained in the lamp. The climb to the balcony proved a difficult undertaking but was eventually overcome, and after passing through the tunnels and chambers by which they had entered they reached the open air.

At this time a most remarkable event occurred, which, while fortunate for the party, that it did not happen before, cannot fail to have its effect upon the public as it prohibits forever any further investigations into the mysteries of this cavern and lays an awful load of responsibility upon the veracity of the writer of this article.

It was nothing less than a heavy shock of earthquake, which closed up forever the mouth of the cavern from which they had just issued.

EGOR LAZAREFF.

There is nothing more distasteful to a free-born American than imprisonment. He would rather tramp through the snows of Winter and sleep in the barns with freedom than to be imprisoned in a luxurious palace. But when that imprisonment is harsh, rigorous and unjust his blood boils no matter whether it is inflicted in America or far away on the steppes of Siberia. The crime of the world to-day, says the Ogden Democrat, is the Russian treatment of political prisoners in Siberia. Like all other crimes it will eventually work out a punishment for its perpetrators. Terrible as were the revelations made by George Kennan, they were not over wrought.

Fierce attacks have been made upon him by men who claimed to have traveled the same route. Nevertheless Kennan's story has been pretty well substantiated and is again affirmed by one of the men whom he saw on his travels. This man Egor Lazareff claims to have traveled over the Winter trail to Irkutsk. He tells of the indignities offered to helpless women and girls along this route of death until the blood ran hot in the veins of the men accompanying them as fellow prisoners. He tells of the months he spent in Irkutsk, the best guarded prison in the world, and of his escape therefrom and subsequent journey of three thousand miles to the Pacific Coast. Fortune favored him and he managed to board a British steamer at Nikolaevsk, which took him to Yokohama from which place he reached San Francisco on the steamer Rio Janeiro. He is now in that city where he related his story to an Examiner reporter.

If the story of Lazareff is true he will soon be as well known in this country as George Kennan. He appears to be a man of intelligence and education and will not rest, as he says, until he has seen Kennan, who he claims, will remember him. The story of Russian severities in Siberia is too well known to be doubted. It is true that denials bob up occasionally but the Kennan stories are confirmed from too many sources to be doubted. Fifty years from now the civilized world will wonder that such things were ever allowed by the other nation. We have hardly yet reached the stage where the powers feel justified in interfering in the internal affairs of such a powerful nation as Russia. If it were some third rate power whose subjects were groaning under such a persecution, some of the great powers would step in and demand that it cease. But as it is the persecutions will probably continue until the Russian people overthrow, in a bloody revolution, the tyrannical authority of them.

Harvey L. DeHart and Miss Dora Griswold, both well known and highly esteemed in Reno, were married Sunday. The Journal wishes them a long and happy wedded life.

The Board of Trustees of the University of the Pacific at San Jose have expressed complete confidence in Dr. First the President of the institution. This action is due to reports in connection with the recent trouble with the students.

The Mormon Conference was held at Salt Lake yesterday. President Woodruff spoke encouragingly of the prospect for Mormonism, and said that the Lord was about to prune his vineyard for the last time and that en route the sprouts would fly like grain before the mower.

Advice to Mothers.

Are you disturbed at night and broken of your rest by a sick child suffering and crying with pain of cutting teeth? If so send at once and get a bottle of Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup for Children Teething. Its value is incalculable. It will relieve the poor little sufferer immediately. Depend upon it, mothers, there is no mistake about it. It cures dysentery and diarrhoea, regulates the stomach and bowels, cures wind colic, softens the gums, reduces inflammation, and gives tone and energy to the whole system. Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup for Children Teething is pleasant to the taste, and is the prescription of one of the oldest and best female nurses and physicians in the United States, and is for sale by all druggists throughout the world. Price 25 cents a bottle, feb. 21-sep 1890

A Line of Air Ships.

The Chicago Times says that a syndicate of Englishmen and Americans have been in session here for several days and will file a certificate of incorporation of an aerial ship company, with a capital of $20,000,000. The paper adds that its feasibility has been fully demonstrated and that immense works will be at once erected and the building of air ships and cars begin. The first will be ready inside of sixty days; that it will be perfectly controllable, and that with it the trip around the world can be made in five days.

A Mean Smash Up.

The Virginia Chronicle says: Evening before last a couple of mean men got a horse and buckboard from Black's stable on D street, and started for Washoe Lake fitted out for a fishing excursion. They were probably drunk or crazy, for they got on the wrong grade above Gold Hill, and it being dark, in trying to turn around they backed over the steep grade. The buckboard was badly smashed and the poor horse laid out on the hillside all night. The two men escaped unhurt, but have been too mean to call around at the stable since.

University Cadets.

The appointment of the University cadet officers takes place at that institution today. There is considerable rivalry among the different cadets as to who shall receive the leading positions, and a smouldering fire of interest was manifest among the student body all day yesterday. The result of the appointments is looked forward to with intense eagerness, and the prospect is that there will be many disappointments, as not all can receive the commissions they covet.

The Salt Lake Tribune has a $25,000 libel suit on its hands. When newspapers attempt to give the news they are either sued for libel or some subscriber withdraws his patronage, (in either case the effect is about the same) and when they do not publish the news they are cursed for imbecility. Between the devil and the sea, they have a rough time of it.—Independent.

Truckee Items.

Republican, Oct. 4th.

Large quantities of hay are being shipped to Truckee from Reno.

Heavy frosts this week have completely ruined the grape and pumpkin crop of this section.

The youngest child of Asa Willis is very ill and fears are expressed that he will not recover.

The dairymen are commencing to think of going over the mountains. Several loads of young stock have already been sent over the hill.

A list of twenty-two charter members has been secured for a Parlor of Native Sons in Truckee. The list will probably be supplemented by a dozen or so from Reno.

Never before has there been so little game at this time of the year. Hunters don't even get a chance to kill the strength of their powder.

Gus Owens, well known in Truckee, went east on yesterday's train, bound for New York, where he has a lucrative position in a railroad office.

It is reported that the Reno parties who own the Donner lake storage reservoir contemplate erecting a saw mill on their property. Also they are thinking of putting in a dam at the old Towle mill and make an ice pond.

THE STATE OF NEVADA.

It Has Touched Bedrock—The Future that Lies Before It.

The Enterprise, in an able article upon the resources and future of Nevada, says: "The State of Nevada has touched bedrock, and no subsequent census will report as low a figure of a population by from 50,000 to 100,000.

"The means of supporting a population of a quarter of a million can be brought into existence in less than ten years. Blessed with a climate superior to that of any other State in the Union, and a virgin soil that will produce all the cereals and vegetables eaten by man and beast, we only need intelligent endeavor and economical administration of affairs to build a prosperous and wealthy State; intelligence in the planting of indigenous grasses to give life to the stock ranges; intelligence in the storage of water for irrigation to grow nearly everything that grows outdoors; intelligence in the working and reduction of our limitless and practically inexhaustible mineral resources, and the use of our cheap water power at such seasons of the year as it can profitably be used.

"The banks of the Humboldt river, with its immense back range country, for a distance of about 300 miles, can support 2,000 families. The Carson river, running for about 150 miles, from Lassen county, Cal., to the Sink, can support 3,000 families. The Walker river country can do fully as well. Washoe county is not overpopulated. With the Truckee river affording a water power to manufacture all the needs of a population of a million people and to crush and reduce all the ores mined in this State, Washoe county ought to have a population of 50,000 people."

Senator Fair.

I don't want to put too much piety into this letter, and Arthur McEwen in a recent letter to the Virginia Chronicle, but I heard a rather good little story about ex-Senator Fair the other day. The Senator is now one of the stanchions of Grace Episcopal Church, but in the old Comstock days his mind did not dwell much on spiritual things. One of his boys had gone to church and when he came home his genial parent asked him what the sermon was about.

"Well, one thing that struck me," said the boy, "was the style in which the preacher went for us wealthy people. He said that when the Savior was looking about him for disciples he went among the poor and lowly and took his followers from among them. Christ, the preacher said, had no rich men among his twelve apostles."

"Maybe the rich men wouldn't serve my son," remarked the Senator, patting with kindly hand the curly head of his beloved child.

Fair, by the way, achieves as many clever, if acid, things as any mere millionaire I know. Speaking of a lady whose embonpoint was always a trifle pronounced and whom he had not seen for several years until he encountered her at a gathering of the ancient nobility on Nob Hill, he observed thoughtfully to a friend: "She's fat. She came into the room just chin after chin."

A Lost Celestial.

Night before last, says the Silver State, a Chinaman known as "Pete" left a gambling room with $150 on his person. It was supposed that he went to bed until yesterday afternoon when he was missed by his associates. Last evening a general search was made for him by the Chinese, who beat guns and started fires in the suburbs for the purpose of attracting him should he be in the vicinity. Some of the Chinese seem to think the devil took him off, while the more Americanized celestials suspect that he was robbed and made away with by some of his countrymen. He formerly cooked at the Wunamucca hotel, but of late he followed the business of gambling.

IF A BODY MEET A BODY

The result is a collision, whether "coming thro' the air" or not. Life is full of collisions. We are constantly colliding with somebody or something. If it isn't with our neighbors it is with some dread disease that "knocks us off the track" and perhaps disables us for life. Women especially it seems, have to bear the brunt of more collisions and afflictions than mankind. In all cases of nervousness, bearing down sensations, tenderness, periodical pains, sick headache, congestion, inflammation, or ulceration and all "female weaknesses," Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription comes to the rescue of women as no other medicine does. It is the only medicine for women, and by its use, under a positive guarantee, that it will give satisfaction in every case or money paid for it will be refunded. See guarantee on bottle wrapper.

Dyspepsia

Makes the lives of many people miserable, and often leads to self-destruction. Distress after eating, sour stomach, sick headache, heartburn, loss of appetite, a faint, "all gone" feeling, bad taste, coated tongue, and irregularity of the bowels, are some of the more common symptoms. Dyspepsia does not get well of itself. It requires careful, persistent attention, and a remedy like Hood's Sarsaparilla, which acts gently, yet surely and efficiently. It tones the stomach and other organs, regulates the digestion, creates a good appetite, and by thus overcoming the local symptoms removes the systemic effects of the disease, banishes the headache, and refreshes the mind.

"I have been troubled with dyspepsia. I had but little appetite, and what I did eat I had to vomit. In an hour after eating I would experience a faintness or tired, all-gone feeling, as though I had not eaten anything. My trouble, I think, was aggravated by my business, which is that of a painter, and from being more or less shut up in a room with fresh paint. Last spring I took Hood's Sarsaparilla—three bottles. It did me an immense amount of good. It gave me an appetite, and my food relished and satisfied the craving I had previously experienced."
